

You can also edit your applications once they've been added. For example, if you add `Aplworks.System` to the list, you can edit the item on the menu to read "AppleWorks"—in plain English. You can also assign a keystroke to launch that application: in the Menu keys line-edit field, just type the character you want to use. (If you're using a letter, "A" for example, type "Aa" to assign both upper and lower-case versions of the letter to the application.) Then you can press, for example, ⌘-A to launch the application instead of pulling down the menu.

Full online help is available. Click the "Help" button and choose an appropriate topic from the "Topic" pop-up menu. When you're done setting up your application list, click "Done."

Quick Launch by Steve Stephenson © 1991-1992 Seven Hills Software Corp. Used by permission.